

Auteur : Benjamin Boutot

Medicen Paris Region is the healthcare competitiveness cluster of the Île-de-France region. Our role is to support our 500 industrial, clinical and academic members in health innovation. Committed to surgical innovation since 2021 through its partnership with the National Academy of Surgery and its flagship event "Surgery of the Future", Medicen aims to strengthen the territorial network around this priority sector to support the development of the best innovative technological and organizational solutions.

The sustainable structuring of French clinical and technological excellence will only be achieved on a national scale. Each competitive cluster and health cluster in France, as a federating and facilitating player, will ensure the success of this surgical transformation through collaboration. This is why Medicen Paris Region is continuing to strengthen its partnership with the French National Academy of Surgery, with the priority in 2023 of involving all the players on the surgical team (surgeons, anesthetists, IBODEs, IADEs, biomedical engineers, data engineers, hospital directors, etc.) and patient associations in order to provide a comprehensive response to the challenges of tomorrow.

Pour les mots clés FR et EN :

Innovation Collaboration Experimentation